This matter was generated by a Complaint filed by Michael J. Barkley ("Barkley") alleging violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the "Act"), and Commission regulations by Respondents Denham for Congress and David Bauer in his official capacity as treasurer (collectively the "Committee"). After reviewing the record, the Commission dismissed the allegation.

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

A. Factual Background

Complainant Michael J. Barkley¹ alleges that the Committee erected campaign signs in numerous "high-traffic" locations throughout California's 10th congressional district, which he contends helped Denham win California's 2012 primary election. Compl. at 1. The signs allegedly were displayed on commercial property, and Barkley contends that the advertising space provided by these commercial property owners gave something of value to the Committee. Id. However, Barkley asserts that the Committee did not report any disbursements to the owners of the property where the signs were placed. Id. at 1-2. Nor did the Committee disclose the "fair market value" of the advertising space as in-kind contributions from the property owners to the Committee. Id. at 1.

Denham for Congress is the principal campaign committee of Congressman Jeff Denham. Barkley was one of Denham's opponents in the June 5, 2012 primary election.

1 Barkley includes by reference 42 pages of photographs of approximately 35 Denham 2 campaign signs, which are posted on his website at http://www.mjbarkl.com/denham2.htm. 3 Compl. at 1. The signs include the message "Local Farmer, Jeff Denham, U.S. Representative." 4 with a disclaimer stating "[p]aid for and authorized by Denham for Congress." Id. The signs 5 appear to have been posted in various residential, commercial, and industrial areas. Id. at 1-3. 6 According to Barkley, the Denham campaign signs were displayed for four to eight weeks, and 7 might have resulted in at much as $340,000 in unreported contributions. ² Id. 8 The Committee responds that, during the campaign, it routinely provided campaign signs 9 to volunteers upon request. Resp. at 1. However, Committee agents and employees did not 10 direct volunteers to place signs in certain locations, nor did the Committee keep records of where 11 the signs were ultimately placed. Id. The Committee argues that, under the Act and 12 Commission regulations, the value of services provided by uncompensated campaign volunteers 13 is not a contribution to the campaign, even when volunteers provide their personal residence for campaign-related activity. Id. Therefore, the Committee asserts that no contributions resulted 14 15 when volunteers posted signs on their personal property, regardless of the alleged value that may be calculated by the number of "people pass[ing] by the location in a given day" and viewing the 16 17 signs. Id. 18 The Committee further denies that it directed volunteers to place signs on corporate 19 property and suggests that, if any signs were placed on corporate property, the volunteers may 20 have acted on their own initiative. Resp. at 2. The Committee also claims that it is unaware of 21 any corporations that agreed to place the Committee's signs on their property, and asserts that 22 Barkley's photographs disclose other candidates' signs posted in the same locations. Id. To the corporate property.

Barkley estimated the value based on commercial rates for outdoor advertising displays that are calculated according to the display size, type, and number of "eyes" that will see the display. Compl. at 2.

In sum, the Complaint alleges that the Committee received something of value when its campaign signs were displayed on commercial property without charge. The Committee asserts that no contribution resulted when volunteers posted signs on their own property, and the Committee is unaware of any corporate entities that consented to post campaign signs on their

B. Legal Analysis

The Act and Commission regulations define "contribution" as any "gift, subscription, loan . . . or anything of value made by any person for the purpose of influencing any election for Federal office." 2 U.S.C. § 431(8)(A)(i); 11 C.F.R. § 100.52(a); see also 2 U.S.C. § 441b(b)(2). The Act limits the amount any person may contribute to a candidate with respect to any election for Federal office. 3 2 U.S.C. § 441a(a)(1)(A); see also 11 C.F.R. § 110.1(b). It also prohibits corporations from making contributions in connection with federal elections. 2 U.S.C. § 441b(a); see also 11 C.F.R. § 114.2(b)(1). "Contribution" does not include "the value of services provided without compensation by any individual who volunteers on behalf of a candidate or political committee." 2 U.S.C. § 431(8)(B)(i); see also 11 C.F.R. § 100.74 (the value of services provided by a volunteer is not a contribution).

Under the Enforcement Priority System the Commission uses formal scoring criteria as a basis to allocate its resources and decide which matters to pursue. These criteria include without limitation an assessment of the following factors: (1) the gravity of the alleged violation, taking Committee signs may have been placed on commercial property owned by persons other than corporations including, inter alia, unincorporated associations, partnerships, and limited liability companies.

- into account both the type of activity and the amount in violation; (2) the apparent impact the
- 2 alleged violation may have had on the electoral process; (3) the complexity of the legal issues
- 3 raised in the matter; and (4) recent trends in potential violations of the Federal Election
- 4 Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the "Act"), and developments of the law. It is the
- 5 Commission's policy that pursuing relatively low-rated matters on the Enforcement docket
- 6 warrants the exercise of its prosecutorial discretion to dismiss cases under certain circumstances.
- 7 The Office of General Counsel has scored MUR 6595 as a low-rated matter. In light of the
- 8 nature of the alleged facts and circumstances, the Commission dismissed this matter.
